OFFICIAL STUDENT PUBLICATION OF TREVECCA NAZARENE COLLEGE

VOLUME 30, NO. 2

NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

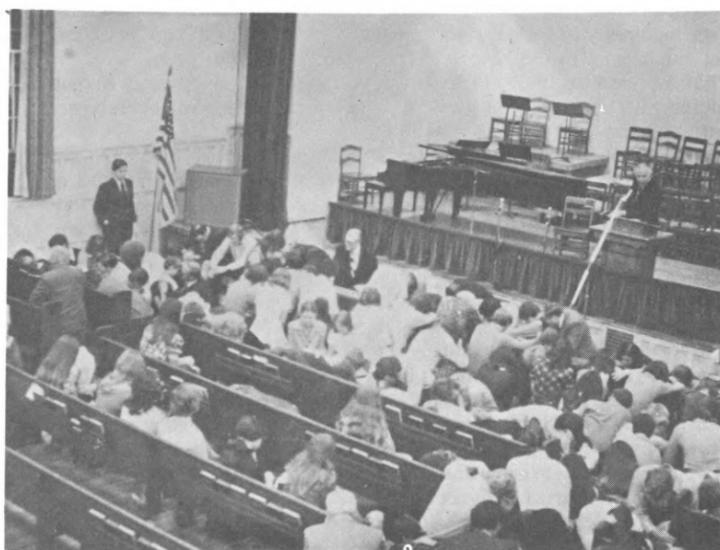

OCTOBER 11, 1973

REVIVAL SWEEPS TNC

Trevecca's Fall Revival was held during the week of October 1 to 5. Evangelist was Rev. C. William Fisher from California. Attendance was good every night, among both students and faculty members, as well as outside visitors. McKay had the highest percentage of attendance overall. A great blessing was received by all that attended.

At left, Rev. Fisher speaks to students in chapel. At right, many students line the altar and seek spiritual help on the final night of the revival.

TREVECCA'S NEW FACULTY

by Brian McGuire

Trevecca is proud to have several new faculty this year, three of which will be presented in this article. Each are outstanding in their field, and will do much to add to the college.

Mr. Franklin Cook is with us this year as director of Public Relations and Professor of Religion. Mr. Cook has had a great deal of experience in the area of Missions, having served the last eleven years as assistant to Dr. E. S. Philips, the General Secretary of World Missions.

Mr. Cook moved here to Nashville from Overland Park, Kansas, suburb of Kansas City, where he attended the Overland Park Church of the Nazarene. He is married to the former Maylou Williamson and has two children: a twelve-year-old girl and a seven-year-old boy.

Mr. Cook considers his job here at Trevecca as a good opportunity; he enjoys being around a college campus and teaching young people.

Mrs. Carole Costa is our new teacher in the Education department. She graduated from Trevecca in 1963 and did her Masters at Peabody. She has taught in the Metro school district for the past nine years. Mrs. Costa will be teaching Materials and Methods of Reading, Language Arts, Developmental Reading for College Students, and two other developmental reading courses at the primary and intermediate level. She also supervises seven student teachers.

Mrs. Costa is married to Roger Costa, who teaches at the Donelson Junior High School. She is the daughter-in-law of Jerry Costa, Biology professor here at Trevecca. Mr. & Mrs. Costa have one three-year-old girl.

Mrs. Carole Costa says of her association at Trevecca: "in the short time that I have been a part of Trevecca's faculty, I have found that helping students get a Christian education brings fulfillment."

Dr. Victor D. Sutch, Professor of History and Political Science at the Doctorate level, has been called one of the most valuable assets Trevecca has on its present faculty. Sutch graduated from Olivet in 1946, his college career being interrupted by three years in the Army Air Force flying transport aircrafts. He received his M.S. at the Western Reserve University with a major in History and a minor in English Literature. He later earned his Ph.D at the University of Colorado.

Dr. Sutch spent twelve years at the Airforce Academy, from 1958 to 1970. He comes to Trevecca after three years at Wright State in Dayton, Ohio, where he spent two years as a professor and sixteen months as Chairman of the Department of History.

Dr. Sutch and his wife Rebecca, who graduated from Olivet in 1944, have four children. The oldest two are married, one at Ft. Lewis in Colorado in business, the other in the Airforce. Another boy, Andrew attends here at Trevecca, after two years at Bethany Nazarene College and one year at British Isles Nazarene College. Their youngest, a daughter, is a senior at high school and plans to attend Olivet Nazarene College.

As to why Dr. Sutch is here, he responded: "I am excited about being at Trevecca. The reason is that I believe we represent the wave of the future. I am convinced that it is not the Ivy League nor the state universities nor the non-church-related colleges that are in the fore-front of education today. It is in the evangelical schools and colleges that the future is being made. It is from schools like Trevecca that the next generation of national and professional leaders will come. If we keep our faith and our dedication - and I am sure we will - the future lies with us. It is great to be where the action is!"

SMC'ERS REPORT

by Kathy White

Spending the summer in a country like Peru or Guatemala is an experience that few people can enjoy, but for six Trevecca students the experience became reality this summer. These students were part of the Student Mission Corp program which orients college students to the life of a missionary. The six people who represented Trevecca were: Steve Digby in Peru; Dave Foltz in the Virgin Islands; Bill Gunno in Belize (British Honduras); Vickie Boone in Trinidad; Glenda Wright in Brazil; and Herb Agee in Guatemala.

On June 25th, the students began training for the mission field with a week of orientation in Laredo, Texas. During this week, Steve, Dave, Bill, Vickie, Glenda, and Herb learned new songs in the language of the country to which they were assigned, learned how to work puppets, and were trained in presenting object lessons to the natives. After the week of orientation, each of the SMC'ers left for either his assignment or went to another location for language training.

In Steve Digby's case, the week after leaving Laredo was spent in Cuernavaca, Mexico, concentrating on studying Spanish before going to Peru. After that week, Steve was ready to begin his stay in Peru.

The first three weeks of the summer Steve spent in Peruvian jungles with the Dr. Garman family. About the only instructive work Steve did there was to teach the Aguaruna Indians the art of guitar playing. The remainder of his stay in the jungles was divided between painting and repairing Dr. Garmon's home and alligator hunting in a dugout canoe.

A mountain village called LaMisa was Steve's next stop. For three days he lived in the little village with no facilities and only a barn to sleep in. He attended church in LaMisa almost continuously, and it was there that he actually began ministering to the people.

After leaving LaMisa, Steve went to Chiclayo, the center of the Nazarene ministry in Peru. The students held services throughout Chiclayo and held chapel services in the Bible school there, but still the summer wasn't over. The following 1½ weeks were spent in Lima, the capitol of Peru, before heading home.

Trevecca certainly has a right to be proud of its SMC'ers. These, and many others experiences, made the summer for these students something they will long remember.

DR. SLIFER EARNS DEGREE

by Donna Hood

"Study to show thyself approved" is a phrase that aptly fits Dr. Slifer and his most outstanding accomplishment during the summer - earning his Doctor of Education degree at Auburn University in Alabama. While there, Dr. Slifer worked on an assigned basis as consultant to administrators and teachers in various Alabama school systems. Later, he became the Director of the Evening School and Adult Education at Gadsden State Junior College.

He has served on Southern Association committees evaluating high schools in Tennessee and Georgia. He is an ordained elder in the Nazarene church and has pastored for eighteen years.

While serving in the pastorate, he became interested in the psychological aspects of counseling, which were deeper than pastoral counseling. At the same time, Dr. Slifer was serving as a guidance counselor and teacher on a part time basis in high school. These combined factors induced him to go for further advanced degrees.

Before receiving the Ed.D. degree, he earned various other degrees, which are: A.B., Trevecca; M. Div., Vanderbilt; and M.A. Austin Peay.

by Linda Cramer

Use your imagination for a moment...

A beautiful, blue lake - Lake Trevecca - waves gently lapping up particles of rock and soil to be carried out to sea. At its edge stands a young boy, a flat rock clutched in hand, scrutinizing the water carefully. Then, with a quick, up-twisted toss, the stone skips across the surface - seven times! - breaking the stillness and causing confusion among the fish life below. Then it sinks out of sight, only a series of great, circling ripples remaining from the rock's impact on the water.

A simple illustration? Yes, but it is very reflective of our life here at Trevecca.

We are like so many fish in a lake - of many different colors, from many different places, accustomed to various types of life styles. Each unlike the other, but living together in the same environment, doing things together, learning to communicate and understand on the same level - to live in peace.

That is, we live in peace until something happens that does not coincide with what we want, with what we think is best for ourselves. Then confusion and turmoil sets in.

During all of this strife, a person is standing on shore nearby, watching us in our foolishness - someone who will not intervene with a gentle touch until we see Him and let Him enter our lives - Christ.

Sometimes we rebel against His healing love, satisfied with our own selfish motives and doing it "my way." When this happens, His presence can create more confusion than ever, causing us to look at our sinful souls and ask whether this is the best way to live or not. He can make a great impact on our lives, be our Rock to receive strength from when it seems the waves will surely drown us.

However, the change He makes in us does not end at the moment of salvation; this is only the beginning. From there on, we radiate His love in other ways. The ripples we make each day for Christ are just as important as the beginning act, if not more so. It is only through serving that we can continue to grow and expand as a person, to even have hopes of a successful year at Trevecca.

Think for a second about what positive "ripples" you wish to create this year - to love others; to be more understanding; to be motivated to study; to always have time to listen. The list is endless, but such a list will give you some guidelines for making the best of each day. It will help you learn what it is to be one with Christ.

A favorite scripture of mine, John 15, says this about oneness in Christ:

"I am the real vine, and my Father is the gardener. He breaks off every branch in me that does not bear fruit, and prunes every branch that does bear fruit, so that it will be clean and bear more fruit...Remain united to me, and I will remain united to you. A branch cannot bear fruit by itself; it can do so only if it remains in the vine. In the same way you cannot bear fruit unless you remain in me. I am the vine, you are the branches." (Good News for Modern Man)

We are His branches, a continuation of Christ's work and love. Our lives should reflect back an image we are not ashamed for people to see. We are the mirror of Christ.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor's Note: The following is not the usual format of a Letter to the Editor. However, it was submitted as such and is being printed in full for you to read and form your own opinion.

Dear Editor:

As far as I know, I haven't inherited any money from a long lost relative. I didn't take a chance on winning the Irish Sweepstakes, and I can't sew. What am I to do?

I am told my dress must be longer than one inch below my fingertips. Either I have monkey arms or I'm extremely indecent because after going through my wardrobe, I found only one dress which meets this requirement. It is five years old and well on its way to being threadbare. Okay, a hundred dollars for five dresses to wear to class (that is cheap if you have checked clothing prices lately).

Well now, that's out of the way. Class is over, I can change into pants...or can I? The almighty Student Handbook states, "pant-suits are allowed after 4:00 p.m., no jeans except on Saturday." But I only have two pairs of nice pants, and I would like to save them for the weekend! Too bad, can't afford to get that first warning. Let's see, twenty-five dollars an outfit, five days a week, oh and one for Saturday, too. One hundred and fifty dollars. Not bad.

Ah, Wednesday is here at last, tennis in the afternoon. I can go wash clothes, clean the room, run over to the cafeteria for a bite to eat, then go straight to class...Hey, haven't I forgotten something? Pants only after 4:00 p.m. Okay, I'm a reasonable person. I'll get literally "dressed" for lunch, go to the dorm, get on my jeans, leave the dorm, go back to the dorm, put on my trench coat (how could a person forget something like that in 90 degree weather?), go to the tennis courts, get redressed, go check my mail, come back and put on slacks for dinner if I want, eat dinner, go back to the dorm and change clothes for church. That is, if I have enough energy left to do it after all the changing.

Sunday church...clothes. I would like to wear something other than what I wore during the week. Maybe I can pull another sixty dollars off the money tree in my backyard. I mean, after all, that is only three hundred and ten dollars I will have spent on clothes and I can wear them all year, or at least until the weather changes. Then I can buy more clothes for winter.

Let's see now, three hundred and ten dollars added on to my school bill of eight hundred and ten dollars is only one thousand, one hundred and twenty dollars (living expenses such as books, laundry, etc. not included). One thousand, one hundred and twenty dollars, that is the least a school can ask of a person. OR IS IT?

- Name Withheld.

RELIGIOUS AFFAIRS CORNER

IN THE BEGINNING GOD... by Mark Farris

The first four words in the Bible are excellent words of wisdom for us as we begin the new school year - "In the beginning God." We all know the importance of a good start. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale says that the tone set at the breakfast table often sets the tone for the whole day. If, at the beginning of the day, we dwell on unhappy thoughts, then more than likely the day will be ruined. If we begin with peaceful thoughts, then there is a good chance of a peaceful day. When we apply that to a school year, we see the importance of starting right, and what could be a more correct way to start than to go from the very beginning with God? When we start with our little hand encompassed by the mighty hand and strength of God, we begin correctly, positively, and can expect a good year ahead.

But it is important not to just begin with God, but to make sure we continue to follow Him. Adam and Eve started out right. They had the best set up ever known to man; but when they stopped following God and let sin enter into their lives, they hid from Him because they were afraid. Saul made a good beginning with God, but he let the devil wedge jealousy and disobedience between him and God until finally Saul said, "Behold, I have played the fool and have erred exceedingly." These all began with God but didn't continue, and the results were somewhat less than desirable.

But there was another man whose name was Paul. After being confronted by God, this man too started following Him and continued following throughout his life. He was shipwrecked, put in prison, and had to answer before kings, but still he followed. When it came his time to die, instead of having to admit how foolish he was as Saul did, he said, "I have kept the faith." He had begun to follow God on the Damascus road, had continued following, and had gotten positive results.

If we at Trevecca will make sure we have all individually had our beginning with God and will keep following Him, then we can be assured of positive results in this school year, in life itself, and finally in Heaven. Sure, we'll have a few troubles; but we'll have the Master of All Masters as our guide and help and can be assured that if we start in the beginning with God, in the middle with God, then in the end we'll have God.

There has been a revision of some basic operating procedures in the Religious Affairs Council. The change affects the relationship between the Christian Worker's Association and the other religious clubs on campus (Trevecca Missionary Fellowship, Trevecca Ministerial Association and Youth Minister's Club).

The Christian Worker's Association is excited about its new position on campus. C.W.A. is not only serving as an outreach organization for those students interested in joining it alone, but it is also serving as the outreach program for the other religious organizations mentioned above. A student at Trevecca has the opportunity of becoming a member of either the Youth Minister's Club, Trevecca Missionary Fellowship, Trevecca Ministerial Association or Christian Worker's Association. A person joining one of the three clubs (Y.M.C., T.M.F., or T.M.A.) will automatically receive an associate membership in C.W.A. A person, if he or she wishes, may join C.W.A. without becoming a member of any other club. An associate membership in C.W.A. will become an active membership upon attending a specified number of outreach programs.

This new system allows the Y.M.C., T.M.F., and T.M.A. to concentrate on learning experiences (through seminars, panel discussions, programs, etc.) and leave the practical outreach experience to C.W.A. This new system is also permitting C.W.A. to concentrate more fully upon their outreach programs.

SOLOMON'S PORCH

- a place for fellowship with friends
- a time to sing and snack
- an opportunity to draw closer to Jesus
Each Saturday evening at 8:00 p.m., beneath the porch of McClurkan.

God is here. Yes, He's here working in Nashville. Trevecca students are going out each Sunday to be a friend and win someone to Christ. Get excited. Get involved. We are praying for more students to help. Are you one?

EAT A PINE TREE?

The following is a segment of a live interview taped September 21 by WNAZ-FM with Mr. Euell Gibbons, conservationist, wild foods expert, and author of the best seller, Stalking the Wild Asparagus. He is perhaps best known to us for his role in the Grape Nuts cereal television commercial, in which he solemnly (and somewhat comically) says, "You can eat a pine tree." And he's right, so read on. Terry Turner: We're interviewing Mr. Euell Gibbons today. How are you today, Mr. Gibbons?

TT: Stalking the Wild Asparagus is your first sort of back-to-nature book, isn't it?
 Yes, it's the first book I've ever had published, but it is not the first book I ever wrote...It has now sold over a half a million copies...It's a great deal of fun, but it's just not the sort of hobby people talk about...If I was at a party somewhere and met a new girl, and said, "What kind of weeds you been eating lately?," she would look at me a bit strange. This is one of the troubles...
 TT: And this is the real thing, like, in your life that comes out?
 Yes, this is the real thing, although for 50 years it was just a hobby...Of course, I've got six books now, and one to come out this next month (October) called, Stalking the Faraway Places...

 TT: Do you have recipes for these wild foods?
 Oh, yes. I make a may apple chiffon pie with a grapes nut crust, for one thing...I use more grape nuts in cooking than I do in eating as a cereal...
 TT: One final question. I've heard you say that you can eat a pine tree. I was wondering how you got around to that.
 Of course, one does not just go out and start chewing on the branch of a pine tree. The Indians used to eat a great deal of the inner bark of the white pine. They would cook this with venison or buffalo meat. I have found that I can cook it and make it fairly palatable by just adding a handful of powdered milk to the water it is cooking in. This makes it a very mild thing and takes away a lot of the stringency. It has a lot of food value to it and contains high vitamin C. The pine needle can be made into a tea that is high in vitamin C also...

Mr. Euell Gibbons, author of the best seller, Stalking the Wild Asparagus, is pictured here holding an eight pound Grape Nut loaf.

BEYOND SENTIMENTALITY

by Mike Mort

Is the desire for an expansion of our consciousness a legitimate desire? Drugs, mystical religious experiences, the occult - are not these expressions of a deep innate desire to transcend our seemingly tragic finitude, to go beyond our meaningless human existence to find meaning? Yes! I believe it is. Something within all of us hungers for reality, and the desire for that awareness is a legitimate one. However, the answer is not to be found "out there" but "here" in the midst of us. The answer to life is incarnate, it is in life itself.

many people do we touch every day, yet because of pre-occupations, diversified interests, and self centeredness, we do not feel their touch? There is nothing moral about being aware of our hand touching the paper, but maybe, just maybe, we do have a responsibility, Christian or un-Christian, to be consciously sensitive to the lives that we touch.

Introspection, though at times very painful, is healing. It is difficult to clearly understand our motives and hidden concerns. However, the starting place of healthy relationships is a healthy self, and part of this "life awareness" is self-sensitivity.

To be aesthetic is to be sensitive to beauty. But is this all it means? Is beauty objective in the sense that it is only related to objects? Can aesthetics include objects in relation to each other and the sensitivity to the relationship? In other words, it is not just a matter of being in touch with people but also being sensitive to the bridge that we meet them on. In this light, words like hate, prejudice, and indifference truly become ugly. This is also our concern.

"Oh God, forgive us for being callous. Open our eyes that we may see. Open our hearts that we may feel. Open our minds that we may understand. Help us to walk slowly and deliberately, consciously aware of the life you have given us. Amen."

Got your curiosity up about wild foods? Well, to hear this interview in full to find out more about wild foods, tune to WNAZ-FM, our campus radio station, from 8:30 to 9:00 tonight, October 11.

VIP DAYS APPROACHING

by Tim Pusey

Trevecca VIP DAYS will soon be here - October 18-19. All high school juniors and seniors who are interested in attending TNC have been invited to come and receive a first-hand view.

After arriving on a Thursday afternoon, they will be entertained by a welcome from President Moore, a student talent hour, and a tour of Nashville. Friday will involve a campus tour, participation in our chapel service (with the Concert Choir singing), more welcomes from administrators, departmental counseling, football, swimming, basketball, and a post-game sing-along. Saturday morning brings an end to the busy schedule.

ALL-SCHOOL RETREAT HELD

by Linda Cramer

Falls Creek Falls State Park was the scene of the 1973 All-School Retreat, September 21, 22 and 23. The park is located directly east of Trevecca near Sparta, Tennessee, approximately a 2 1/2 hour drive. An estimated 100 people took part in the many activities scheduled for the weekend, this including faculty, students, and administrators, as well as a few outside visitors.

Registration started at 4:30 p.m. Friday evening and continued until suppertime. And the meals were far different from the usual camp-time fare - ham, roast beef, pie, potatoes and gravy, vegetables, etc. - in short, all the fixings of a good, home-cooked meal, plus a few sandwiches thrown in for good measure. Much credit goes to Fred Libek for organizing such an effective and efficient food crew.

That evening our first of three conferences was held, with Dr. Paul Cleckner as speaker. The whole group became earnestly involved in plotting a set of guidelines for themselves to follow during the new school year at "Lake Trevecca" (see editorial this edition). Then a mutual burning session occurred, with a list of all our misgivings and fears of the year going up in flames, symbolic of the engulfing power of Christ.

definitely worth it. Would you believe I brought back a whole handful of rocks from the foot of the falls to show I'd been there? Slowly I made my way back up the trail, stopping about twenty times on the way up to rest, and then had a free afternoon of messing around the park, visiting the hotel, talking to Dr. Moore, Chaplain Wiseman, and Franklin Cook.

Next, Conference number three. This was conducted by the Student Council to find ways a student could help a needy person off-campus during a few hours of spare time. Professor Hull will use the lists compiled to try to put some sort of an outreach program at Trevecca into effect by next fall. Later, to bed and then up again on Sunday morning (fortunately not until the late hour of 7:30 a.m. this time). A brief worship service was held and Communion taken. The spirit of God was definitely present here, as well as throughout the rest of the retreat.

It was finally time to go home, away from the beauty of God's nature and back to the books at old Trevecca. We hated to leave...but just wait till next year!

TREVECCA REPRESENTED AT RADIO CONFAB

Franklin Cook then presented a message, an hour or so of entertainment followed, and it was time to "hit the sack", as the saying goes. However, this was easier said than done, especially when the weather was so cold (from the girls' viewpoint) that we had to sleep in our clothes and were scared a Daddy-long-legs spider was going to crawl in bed with us at any moment. At long last, though, sleep did come.

On October 8th and 9th two Trevecca students, Terry Turner and Karl Payton, attended a Christian Campus Radio Confab in Springfield, Missouri. The purpose of the conference was to share ideas, suggestions, and programs with other colleges across the country with the hopes of planning a college chapter of National Religious Broadcasters (NRB) in the future.

The results of this conference will be printed in the next TREV-ECHOES issue, on October 25th.

A "FINE" RETREAT

by Cathy Ray

It was called Fine Arts Retreat, but at first I failed to discern what was "fine" about it.

We (about 120 departmental music majors and minors) descended upon the camp Friday afternoon, September 29th. Everyone amused themselves with volleyball or made their beds.

The cabins were a combination of early Prehistoric and Late Sadistic with no indoor plumbing. Anything requiring water had to be done outside. That made for a lot of fun!!! Around 7:00 p.m., we had supper: cheese, tomato, and lettuce sandwiches. Well, what do you expect to eat for $5.00 for a whole weekend? It was filling, though.

Next on the agenda were the rehearsals. The various groups divided up, and we will rehearse for an hour. For the rest of the weekend we played volleyball, rehearsed, sketched, painted, ate, slept (?), and had devotions.

Sunday we got up and had breakfast. Afterwards we had communion. It was then that everything seemed "fine."

We loaded on the bus and came back to campus. So, despite the facilities, the weekend was rewarding and God was present.

"Once more with feeling, and watch out for the roaches!"

TROJAN TALK

by Cindy Swisshelm, Rick Funderburk, and Mark Harper

The two people that have recently contributed a great deal to Trevecca athletics are Bobby Jerek and Eddie "O.J." Johnson. In day to day life, each is different; but when it comes to their respective sports, both display great skills. However, both are quiet types; they let their skills do their talking.

Bobby is a sophomore guard on the Trojan Varsity Basketball Team. He is a defensive-minded player and shakes his opponents up with his coverage of them. In high school, Bob played point man on a 1-2-2 zone defense. His great peripheral vision helps him know what is going on all around him.

Bob is a dedicated Christian athlete who is never too busy to listen or to try to help someone. He is now a married man and extremely busy, yet still shows that he is very versatile both on and off the court.

Eddie Johnson is known to many of us as "O.J." O. J. is a complete football player, and he can do it all. In the first game of the intramural season, he was the difference in Beta remaining undefeated. He intercepted a Gamma pass and ran it back for a touchdown. Many people have, as a result, admired Eddie's speed, style, and strength in playing.

With his exceptional speed, O.J. can burn you for extra yards or cut you down before you can turn a corner. His agility allows him to adapt to any situation. He is a smart football player. He just doesn't go out and play - he gets acquainted with the team that he is to play and finds their weaknesses.

He's black and is proud of it. Off the field, he is president of the Afro-American Society. The blacks on campus have faith in him, and he is respected by many not only for his talent in athletics, but for just being the type of person he is.

SOCIETY STATISTICS

Beta, 8 - Gamma, 6

The "Big Red" Beta machine came from behind to defeat a fired up Gamma team. Gamma struck first in the second quarter with an impressive drive. Mike Cole plunged in from the one. A passing attempt failed to net two points. Gamma led 6-0. The next time Gamma had the ball, Eddie Johnson picked off a Gamma aerial and sprinted 63 yards to score. With the score 6-6, Glen Wilson smashed over on the conversion attempt. Beta led 8-6. No more serious threats were posed by either squad and the game ended with Beta on top. Both teams displayed stingy defenses and mistake-plagued sputtering offenses. Statistics for the games were not available.

Alpha, 16 - Delta 0

Alpha scored two first quarter touchdowns and held on to take a 16-0 win over Delta. Keith Isner recovered a fumble early in the game in the Delta end zone for the first score. After a 2 point conversion, Alpha led 8-0. Later in the first quarter, Alpha drove to another 6 pointer. Danny Blue carried it over from the 5 yard line. Again the conversion was successful. The rest of the game was controlled by the defenses. Numerous turnovers dampened any Delta hopes on the rain-soaked field. Their defense kept them in the game. Alpha's offense, successful at the beginning of the game, bogged down. However, their defense did not bend.

MEMOS

The results of the Freshman class elections are as follows: President - Johnny Bledso; Vice President - Steve Sparling; Secretary - Deb Soles; Treasurer - Cindy Cheatam; and Stuco Representatives - Linda Lanham and Jerry Crummer. Congratulations to these new officers!

This Saturday, October 13, will be an All-School Cleanup Day starting at 12:00 p.m. followed by a picnic dinner. Everyone's participation is needed, so get busy!

October 20..... Faculty Recital
November 17 Homecoming Concert

TROJAN TIDBITS

This year for the first time, Trevecca's Athletic Association will include a girls extramural volleyball team. Debbie Lore will be coaching the team, and Mary Lou Pennington will be the team manager.

Team members include: Brenda Patterson; Alice Hall; Moe Moorehead; Jan Carmack; Cathy Thomas; Rose Burkey; Geraldine Nelson; Donna Brewer; Donna McLemore; Donna Chambers; Jan Shelton; and Carey Beharant. Their first game will be at home on October 20 with Union University at 7:30 p.m.

This year Coach Lore plans to have a girl's extramural basketball team, so all girls plan to try out for the team.

Cindy Swisshelm was chosen as first alternate and Sue Cox as second alternate cheerleader for the school year.

APOLOGIES DUE

The TREV-ECHOES staff would like to apologize for omitting the names of Coleen Seitter, Moe Moorehead, and Ralph Swallows from the tennis player listing in last issue.

Due to an error beyond our control, the Dean's List printed last issue was for Winter Quarter, 1973 rather than Spring Quarter. The correct listing will be printed as soon as it is ready.
